Three (3) neglected children have been placed with private individuals, two of these in Claremont and one in Franklin, N. H.

Five cases where children under sixteen years, working after hours, has been attended to. Also six cases of truancy.

There are five (5) cases of feeble-minded children in Lebanon, but there is no room at the school for feeble-minded. Three (3) of the cases are urgent.

In connection herewith I have received 556. Probationer's report, 79 visits to homes of neglected and delinquent children, 84 correspondences, exercised supervision

REPORT OF BOARD OF HEALTH

During the past year Lebanon has lived up to its reputation of being the most sanitary large town in the state of New Hampshire. Two diseases, however, have been quite prevalent, namely, whooping cough and scarlet fever.

These were communicated mostly through the carelessness of the public in not reporting the diseases and taking the proper precautions to prevent their spread.

According to statistics 10,000 children die annually in the United States from whooping cough. Parents should therefore realize the great danger of exposing infants and young children to the disease. They should see that no cases of whooping cough be allowed to attend school, church or any public or private gathering. 5000 children die annually from scarlet fever in the United States, yet here in Lebanon there have been cases where the parents failed to report the disease in their families and have allowed the children to mingle with others and spread the disease. A little active cooperation on the part of the public will aid greatly in the prevention of these diseases. The public is requested report to the Board of Health all violations of the law pertaining to the distribution of milk in unclean vessels. Some of the bottles used have a decidedly swarthy Pittsburg complexion.

John McBride, M. D.,
Health Officer.
